LINDY KIDNAP CLUE BLASTED BY POLICE

Probe Shows Man Named by Jafsie Had No Possible Connection

By The Associated Press

HOPEWELL N J May 25—The one clue which Dr John F Condon Bronx mediator in the Lindbergh kidnap case has been able thus far to pick up in his search of thousands of rogues gallery pictures collapsed today

Col H Norman Schwarzkopf announced today that Dr Condon the Jafsie who paid $50 000 ransom in a futile attempt to obtain return of the baby had picked out one picture in his search for a likeness of the John to whom he handed the ransom money in a Bronx cemetery the night of April 2

The picture that Jafsie said resembled John was that of John Swenson An investigation by state police of Swenson's activities however Col Schwarzkopf said disclosed Swenson had no possible connection with this case

New possible clues were injected into the case today with the taking to Trenton of two notes roughly written on white paper and found in the pocket of an overcoat hanging on a fence around a children's home at Camden A baby blanket also was found nearby The notes read "[illegible] the baby?" and "see cu tomorrow"

The state laid plans to rush the indictment and trial of John Hughes Curtis for his hoax negotiations

His case will be called before the grand jury tomorrow Although authorities hope to avoid calling Col Charles A Lindbergh as a witness the flier will not hesitate to testify at the trial if Curtis is indicted and such testimony is required it was made plain

And that goes double Walker shouted

Later he shook his finger in Seabury's face and reminded him that I am still mayor of New York

Wagner Defends Plan To Issue Two Billions in Bonds for Public Works.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON May 25 — A $1,300 000 000 Democratic bill for employment relief and revival of industry was laid today before the senate with the approval of the combined Democratic steering and policy committees

The bill was introduced by Senator Wagner Democrat of New York on behalf of the five Democratic senators who drafted it He took issue with President Hoover's objections to a bond issue for public works telling the senate "there is no merit in the President's criticism that public works provide but transitory employment that surely transitory employment is better than none

Other members of the subcommittee that drafted it were Senators Robinson of Arkansas Walsh of Montana Pittman of Nevada and Bulkley of Ohio

Wagner said the bill offered as conservative a program of legislation as the severity of the present emergency will permit and added

THREE CLUBS SHARE IN SECOND POSITION

Leaders Beat Presbyterians, Trinity Whips Calvary; Bishops Lose; Epworth Stops Lutherans.

By BOB KIRKPATRICK

Sports Editor The Star

Everything is topsy turvy in the [illegible] Sunday school softball league [illegible] Lee Street Presbyterians are perched on the top rung of the standings ladder with two victories in two starts but there is no assurance they will be there for any length of time. Or no assurance they will not be for that matter. The first three sets of games in the circuit have revealed seven of the eight teams as so evenly matched that picking a winner before the last out is made is next to impossible.

Lee Street is riding along on top today as a result of its second straight victory yesterday over the First Presbyterians by a 1-0 score. Lee Street holds a half game lead over the First Presbyterians, [illegible] Epworth Bishops and St Mary's, the latter three having won two and lost one.

Other Results

In other games yesterday the St Mary's Irish slammed a pair of opposing pitchers for 10 hits that accounted for three runs and beat the Epworth Bishops 3-1. Trinity Baptist rose up after two beatings and handed Calvary a 3-1 wallop-ing and Lutherans dropped their third straight to Epworth No. 1 5-1.

Don Shoemaker and Jimmy Richards put on a real fighting duel as the First Presbyterians and Lee Street staged their seven inning struggle for supremacy. Shoemaker gave up just four hits and Richards was even stingier, allowing only three. Both were extremely tight in the pinches and with the aid of some classy fielding, pulled out of some bad holes without damage.

Lee Street drove across the only run of the game when K. Conkle, the first man to face Shoemaker in the second inning, laced out a singing triple and crossed the rubber on Vanscoy's single. Lee Street got only one man past first base after that but the one run was all that was needed. The Presbyterians twice had men on third base and once had the sacks clogged but couldn't force across the needed tally.

Calvary sent their new recruit pitcher, Art Roof, to the hill against Trinity Baptist and he did a pretty good job of pitching although the Baptists ran up a 3-1 victory. Trinity banged out a total of eight hits off [illegible]. Errors aided in the scoring [illegible] three Baptist runs.

Hap Applegett returned to form and set the heavy hitting Calvary batters down with only four hits, not more than one being recorded in any one inning.

Last Inning Rally

Not until the final man was out in the seventh frame was anyone certain who was going to come out ahead in the Bishop-Irish struggle. The Irish climbed on Jack Ling for five hits and two runs in the first four frames and then added another when Gene Gunder [illegible] one out of the lot for a homer in the seventh.

With the score 3-0 against them the Bishops went into the second [illegible] frame and immediately [illegible] rally that put one man across the plate and two more on the bases before the last man was out. The Bishops collected five hits off Gunder. Four bases on balls combined with the hits to aid St. Mary's in collecting the three run total.

Epworth No. 1 had no more than average difficulty in ringing up the 5-1 victory over the Lutherans. Epworth was held to four hits by the losers but loose fielding allowed four to be converted into five runs. Six errors were charged to the Lutherans. Gamble struck out seven men and gave up four safeties.

COLUMBUS, O., May 25.—Ohio State university will be the focal point for more than 600 Ohio school boy athletes Friday and Saturday when the state interscholastic championships in track, baseball, tennis and golf are decided.

Activities start Friday morning and continue until Saturday night. Preliminaries in baseball, track and tennis will be held Friday while golfers will start their regular tournament at the same time.

Defending champions in this year's carnival will be conspicuous by their absence. Cincinnati Woodward, 1931 baseball title holder, was beaten in the district eliminations. Lakewood won the track meet last year but lost out last week to Cleveland East Tech and Toledo St. Johns will not defend its golf honor.

The golf and tennis championships will be open for both class A and B schools but in track and baseball separate carnivals will be held for the two divisions.

This year's track meet should be [illegible] the most [illegible] contested affairs in recent years with no less than five teams having an almost equal [illegible] to win.

Vines Thinks U. S. Netters Should Compete in English Meet

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, May 25.—Ellsworth Vines, America's ranking net star, believes that in the event of victory over Australia and France in the zone and inter-zone finals the United States Davis cup team should be sent to England for the Wimbledon championships to acquire needed international experience.

Here preparing for the Australian-American cup matches which begin Friday, the youthful Californian characterized as "boloney" the idea that participation at Wimbledon will cause the United States players to become over-tennised.

Vines' opinion on the sort of competition the team needs was expressed in a discussion of the decision of Davis cup officials not to send the American players abroad until shortly before the inter-zone matches in France.

DRIVERS TUNE CARS FOR SPEED CLASSIC

Twelve Cars Yet To Be Qualified for Starting Posts in Race

By The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS, May 25.—Renewed activity in the garages at the Indianapolis motor speedway today [illegible] a scrap for twelve positions remaining to be filled in the starting lineup of forty cars for the 500 mile race here Monday.

Twenty-eight drivers have qualified [illegible] by wheeling their racers [illegible] of the track ten miles at speed averaging more than 100 miles per hour.

Others of [illegible] entrants who filed as entrants in the race have until Saturday afternoon to complete their qualifying speed tests. Among them is Juan Gaudino, lone foreign [illegible]. The Argentine reeled off some practice laps yesterday but is not yet satisfied with the performance of his speedster.

Two [illegible] qualified yesterday. They were [illegible] of Los Angeles, [illegible] last year's race, who averaged [illegible] miles per hour, and [illegible] Schneider, who covered the [illegible] 112.003 miles per hour.

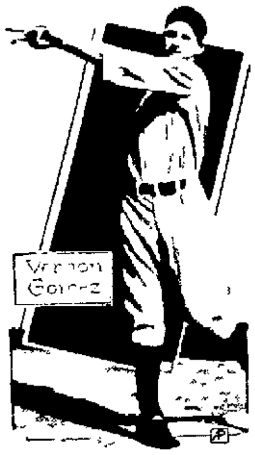
GOMEZ SETS PACE



Strike three! That's what umpires seem to be calling most of the time this season when Vernon (Lefty) Gomez is in the box for the New York Yanks. Gomez yesterday chalked up another victory, his seventh in eight starts thus this season. He is the ace of the Yankee squad and probably of the American league. What a help he is to those New York Yanks. Just ask Col. Jake Ruppert if you don't think so.

In spring football practice at Wisconsin the first string line at one time was composed entirely of athletes who had at some time in their careers played backfield positions.

MINNEAPOLIS TAKES FOURTH IN ROW FROM KANSAS CITY BLUES

Columbus Walloped by Indianapolis, 21-5; Milwaukee Loses, 6-5.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 25 — Marse Donie Bush led his Minneapolis Millers out onto the road today for a month's stay to see how well they can take it.

The Millers, a band of boys Minneapolis fans fondly hope will bring the American Association championship home for the first time since 1915, apparently are a den [illegible] team. They finished a home stand by winning the fourth straight over Kansas City, 6 to 4.

Joe Mowry, the most sensational rookie of the association season, was the hero of the day, banging out a home run with one on base for the winning runs.

Indianapolis set a season record for hitting to wallop Columbus 21 to 5 and protect its hold on second place. The Indians cut loose at the start and rattled off [illegible] hits at the expense of three Red Bird hurlers and failed to score in only one inning.

Paul Hopkins nicked Jack K[illegible] for a home run in the ninth with Phil Todt on to give St Paul a 6 to 5 decision over Milwaukee in the series final.

Louisville-Toledo game was played Sunday as part of a [illegible] double header.

Makes but Feeble To Withstand Flow of Selling

[illegible] Associated Press
[illegible] May 25—The [illegible] market again failed [illegible] notable show of re[illegible] the stubborn flow of [illegible]

[illegible] leading industrials [illegible] but such groups as [illegible] good shares tobacco [illegible] ground easily. Sel[illegible] considerable volume for [illegible] morning but prices [illegible] to slip as the mar[illegible]

[illegible] 2 points carried the American Tobacco issues, Liggett & Myers B and Lorillard into new low ground. American Telephone dropped more than 1 point to the lowest since 1917. General Foods was a soft spot in a group losing 2 points. National Biscuit, National Dairy, [illegible] den, Drug, DuPont, Lambert, Public Service of N. J. and Consolidated Gas were among issues losing a point or so. In the rails, Union Pacific, Norfolk & Western and Santa Fe lost about 2. The American [illegible] issues were conspicuous weak. A firm spot was provided by the Electric Power & Light preferred issues which rose 3 and 4 points in expectation of payment of regular dividends.

U. S. Steel, American Can, Standard of N. J. and some other leaders held up fairly well.

Continued selling of the so called depression proof issues such as the electric power, tobacco and food issues presumably effected necessitous selling of accounts which had been stubbornly retained for some time on the theory that the depression would touch these lines but lightly. As a matter of fact earnings of companies in these groups have held up remarkably well but the persistent decline in the general market has undoubtedly weakened marginal holdings and brokers also explain that investors are having to sell to raise cash.

CHICAGO GRAIN DROP CHECKED

Market Slumps in Early Trading but Stages Slight Recovery Later

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO May 25 Lower prices on grain markets today accompanied [illegible] their moisture in domestic winter wheat territory. Tending [illegible] the wheat market however was word that France had increased her import quota and that shipments this week from Argentina had been sharply curtailed. Opening [illegible] down wheat afterward recovered somewhat. Corn started unchanged to [illegible] off and subsequently held near the initial limits.

Operating [illegible] as an additional weight on the wheat market was [illegible] rains overnight had been quite general from the south west clear to New England. In some quarters [illegible] was urged that hope for improvement in wheat crop conditions southwest did not appear to be a question of rain and that on price declines the buying side was advisable. Advices were at hand that the big wheat belt of south central Kansas especially was giving increased evidence of plant damage from March freezing.

A Chicago crop expert wired [illegible] Scott, Kas. that in general [illegible] wheat crop was heading short, much of it thin and spindly and promising but a scanty yield even under the most favorable circumstances thereafter. Nebraska officials reports put the condition of wheat in that state at 58 against 72 a month ago and 86 at this time last year. On the other hand southern Indiana and Ohio wheat crops were reported as in good shape but from Terre Haute to Pana Ill Hessian fly was starting to break over straws in early headed fields. Corn and oats weakened with wheat.

Provisions reflected hog market downturns.

through its halls while [illegible] roused from sleep [illegible] locked doors

The president's attitude [illegible] dismissal of Edgar Gosney [illegible] teacher also provided recent turmoil When Gosney refused to surrender his job until the end of the school year Dr Lytle held up his pay check

Gosney filed suit for his salary and threatened to attach the university buildings In retaliation he was ordered to leave the campus Later returning from a temporary absence the music teacher found his belongings removed from his room and stored in a basement of a university building

Gosney left his clothes where they were stored and thereafter went to the basement with [illegible] managers of the college to resupply himself with clean shirts as often as needed Meanwhile he won his suit for unpaid salary and collected

Again returning to the campus to attend an athletic meet the music teacher was informed he would be arrested for trespassing but finding a piece of neutral ground near the field he took up his stand there while student friends applauded

In connection with the college's troubles it was understood the institution holds notes aggregating $78 000 as obligations of students and former students for board room and tuition One of the attacks on the administration charged it had been too lenient in accepting such obligations

The resignation of Dr Lytle was followed by appointment of a committee of three trustees W P Minton of Dayton J J Lightbourne of Piqua and John V [illegible] of Huntington Ind to formulate a program to provide for the future of the college reopen soon under the terms suggested by Governor White These terms include a year's truce and a wage scale of $3 28 a day for laborers and 38 cents a ton for loaders

Operators expressed divers opinions as to the workability of the chief executive's proposals while the miners withheld a final decision pending today's meeting Operators of the eastern Ohio field conferred with the governor yesterday and later said the different conditions in Ohio mine regions prevented acceptance of the wage scale point of the peace program

The danger of further disorders apparently passed with the arrival of the troops last night Quiet prevailed both in the Athens district and the Uhrichsville area in eastern Ohio where guards at the Wolford mine exchanged shots with snipers early Tuesday No troops were sent to the Wolford mine but one National guard officer was on duty there with several sheriffs deputies and eight company guards

Meanwhile the mine remained idle its transformer cell disabled by the storm of bullets which also riddled several mine houses No one was injured Three men were arrested and accused of using high powered rifles during the battle

HOOVER NOMINATION VIRTUALLY ASSURED

President Pledged 621 Votes More Than Enough for Victory

By The Associated Press

In definitely pledged votes to be cast at the Republican national convention President Hoover held today the strength needed for his renomination

The mark 578 was passed when Texas yesterday instructed its delegation of 49 for him bringing the assured Hoover votes to 621 and the total claimed for him by [illegible] leaders in 11 states but [illegible] puted by Joseph I France [illegible] candidate to 1011 There are only 1154 votes in the convention

The nominating total was reached as the President and party officials conferred on the platform which the convention is to adopt Prohibition was one of the subjects touched on the conferees said but no decisions were given

In the Democratic fold Speaker Garner yesterday drew the 46 convention votes of his home state Texas to take rank as third among the presidential candidates with a total of 90 Franklin D Roosevelt increased his strength to 471 with six from Delaware while New Jersey's previously named 32 delegates were assigned definitely to Alfred E Smith leaving his second place total at 94 votes

No new delegations were named today but tomorrow Maryland Republicans will pick 19 delegates for Hoover as a result of his primary victory May 2 over France

REPORT BLACKMER TO RETURN FROM EUROPE

Self Exiled Teapot Dome Witness Pays 3 Millions in Back Taxes.

By The Associated Press

DENVER Colo May 25—The home town that Harry M Blackmer has not seen for five years speculated today as to whether [illegible] Croesus would divest himself of the man without a country tag at a cost of millions

Word was received by the Rocky Mountain News that Blackmer who refused to come back from Paris during the Teapot dome scandals and thereby started a string of troubles for himself has settled his tax difficulties with the federal government for $3 069 784

A Washington dispatch to the newspaper said Blackmer adjusted his civil liabilities with the government last Wednesday and that the U S treasury has the cash it demanded Through his attorneys at Washington he was scheduled to pay today fines totalling $60 000 for failure to appear as a witness in two cases brought in federal court here in connection with the oil scandals

All this led to belief in some quarters that Blackmer tired of life in Paris and on the Riviera was planning to come home But the news said the payment of the millions did not purchase immunity from criminal prosecution and that Blackmer must still face a fraud indictment The indictment is connected with alleged attempts to evade income tax

After the Teapot dome scandals broke his presence was sought as a witness in the trials of Harry F Sinclair and Albert B Fall former secretary of the interior He stuck to his refusal to return from Paris

The government seized $100 000 in Liberty bonds he owned and he was fined $60 000

JIMMY WALKER IS HEARD BY PROBERS

N Y Mayor Faces Seabury To Defend Record of Administration.

Equitable Bus company which the mayor signed and which has been the subject of much testimony in previous hearings

The hearing had not gone far before a brief verbal tilt occurred between the mayor and the gray haired former judge Seabury was asking about the Equitable franchise and questioned the mayor as to the time he voted for it

Question Seabury Power

Mayor Walker leaned forward to address his examiner

I don't think you have any more right to question an executive and cross examine him on the official workings of his mind the mayor asserted, than you have to question the governor on an appointment or the President of the United States However

Applause drowned out what he was going to say

And you ask me the mayor exclaimed to Seabury to remember things that happened five or six years ago when you can't remember what happened here last week

A burst of laughter resounded [illegible] asked the mayor again regarding his vote for the bus franchise He answered

I can only repeat what I said before [illegible] voted for the Equitable franchise because it provided an [illegible] 5 cent fare which I have consistently advocated

Continued applause or subdued applause and laughter led Seabury [illegible] to remark to the mayor that he seemed to have an appreciative audience

I [illegible] to come here to get an appreciative audience Walker replied and there was more [illegible]

In the months leading up to [illegible] Walker's appearance on the stand [illegible] testimony and documents were presented linking him with the missing Russell T Sherwood who has been described as his business agent and dealing with financial matters which he now must explain

As a result of recent testimony that J A Sisto taxicab financier had given the mayor $26 500 worth of bonds federal officials yesterday began investigation of Mayor Walker's income tax returns

Extra Session Likely

Seabury has indicated he does not expect to be through with him by tonight and has said there may be an extra session tomorrow in addition to Friday's regular hearing

Only one witness was scheduled to go on today before the mayor to finish testimony begun Monday about stock transfers involving Sherwood Park Commissioner Walter R Herrick and J Allan Smith the bus agent who, it has been testified purchased a $10 000 letter of credit which the mayor used on a European trip in 1927

Sherwood who according to testimony shared a safe deposit box with the mayor from 1924 until he disappeared last summer and transacted all the mayor's business at a New York bank for six years has been sought through the United States and Mexico, where he was served with a subpoena before again disappearing He was finally fined $50 000 for contempt and some of his property was sold at sheriff's auction Seabury has charged that Mayor Walker has kept Sherwood out of the committee's jurisdiction

WE KNOW that the power of the moon lifts the tides in big oceans, small lakes or half filled teacups. A deep German scientist discovers that the moon also creates "a terrestrial tide" raising the solid crust of the earth and lowering it. Mountains, hills and valleys are all raised and lowered and we don't even know it. We should be grateful to our moon for without its tides the oceans would become stagnant and the earth perhaps uninhabited.

THE SENATE finance committee says you shall pay a tax of 10 per cent on automobile tires. Your congress that refuses a very moderate sales tax that would not perceptibly affect merchants or buyers proceeds to pick out certain industries for a heavy sales tax, taxes on your tires, on your theater tickets, a tax planned on automobiles, heavy taxes already on gasoline. A small sales tax on everything except foodstuffs would be more sensible.

GROCERS SEAT NEW OFFICERS

Ceremony Is Feature of Annual Banquet of Serv-U-Wel Group.

Officers for 1932-33 were installed at the annual banquet of the Marion Serv-U-Wel grocers in the Y. M. C. A. last night. Hoke Donithen installed the officers.

The officers are A. W. Somerlot, president; C. Z. Zachman, vice president; D. J. Lawler, treasurer; J. H. Abbott, secretary; George Andres, secretary-manager; Roscoe D. Merger, Bennett Bindley, E. J. Schuler, George A. Smith, Hayes H. Cooper, Frank F. McDaniel, directors.

Greater enthusiasm in merchandising, greater efforts toward selling, the use of suggestions for selling and more attention to service were stressed by the speakers Bennett Bindley of Marion and Arthur S. Zachman, secretary of the Toledo Retail Grocers' association.

The average grocer is lazy, Zachman declared. He wants to hibernate until business picks up and then cash in on prosperity, he said. The only way to get more business is to work harder and pay more attention to the essentials of good merchandising and selling, Zachman added.

C. Z. Zachman, retiring president, was toastmaster. The Lakeside orchestra furnished music. The banquet was the fourth annual meeting of the grocers.

A-Shopping To Go.

Femininity and modesty are not the least of Mrs. George Palmer Putnam's attractions, by far. It is a deeply vibrant thrill that comes with thoughts of her lonely and dangerous flight across the Atlantic ocean. It is scarcely more than a tingle ending in a chuckle, however, that comes with thoughts of a woman flying the Atlantic, telephoning back to her husband to ask what to do next, and spending Sunday in London in borrowed clothes. What could have been more appropriate than a shopping tour planned for Monday morning?

It will be a long time before women fly the Atlantic ocean overnight a-shopping to go, but depend on it, when the time comes, to see a statue to the former Amelia Earhart erected in every shopping center on the continent. She it was who made the first trip, as she explains it, for purely personal reasons. She was first to exclaim in such circumstances, "But, my dear, I simply haven't a thing to wear!" And she it was who set out enthusiastically to "do" the great stores of a great city. Advertising like that can't be purchased; it has to be made by the ambitions and successes of human beings.

All European merchants together now—a cheer for the first woman to set you thinking about the possibility that yesterday's American tourists, lavish spenders though they were, may be put in to the shade by tomorrow's overnight shoppers. But there's a note of anguish in the cheer. Does it say, "How long, please tell us how long?"

Slightly Hysterical.

If Rip Van Winkle had slept from the stormy days when congress was drawing up the Hawley-Smoot tariff up to the present he could pick up a newspaper and never realize that he had lost time. The senate has the bit in its teeth and seems determined to pull the tariff issue wide open.

Ohio's senators have refused so far to get hysterical. Even staunch Senator Fess was found voting against the oil and coal tariffs. Senator Bulkley, a better Democrat than some of his companions in the senate, maintained the traditional party position.

Democrats are blaming Mr. Hoover and the Republicans for turning a revenue bill into a protective tariff measure, but Republicans are blaming the Democrats, so everything is even. Senator Long shouts from the aisle that Democrats deserve credit for helping oil producers and another Democrat, Senator Hull, yells back that prestidigitators "close to the highest powers in the administration" deserve the blame. What have you?

The senate is admitting that it has the same capacity for hysteria that the house displayed in a pinch when the revenue bill was in its hands. It was the happy thought then that senators would better be able to keep their balance under pressure. But they, too, have added to the black marks against popular government's record in a crisis. And the most depressing fact of all is that it's probably too late now to undo the damage. Log-rolling has started. While there are more logs to roll it will continue, unless the senate shakes off its present mood.

Lord Inchape.

James Lyle Mackay, whose extraordinary business acumen and zeal in the service of the British empire won him the title, first earl of Inchape, was another of the world's richest men.

He envisioned an intricate net of affairs in which he would be able to move with the safety of a spider in his web. He envisioned it, and realized it. Perhaps he did not consciously look ahead to his importance as an international figure in the financial world, but tremendous possibilities were latent within him, waiting to be summoned by the fire of his imagination.

He started from poverty, as rich men should, to escape some of the curse of their wealth. When he died his enterprises covered the entire eastern hemisphere. He was more than a private business man, however. He negotiated treaties for Great Britain. He served on innumerable government commissions. He gave his country the benefit of his experience in the shipping industry. He took its problems to heart and solved them out of his love for the empire in which he had reached such tremendous stature.

Great Britain can be proud that she had a Lord Inchape. The United States can speculate with some sorrow that a few of his type would be welcome on this side of the ocean. Yet, while speculating, it is only reasonable to ask: How many more can Britain expect to have?

There Always Is a Reckoning.

President Hoover's opinion of a federal bond issue for relief, given to the people in a letter to the president of the American Society of Civil Engineers, might have had for its text: There always is a reckoning.

Mr. Hoover asks his countrymen to remember that it is their government they are loading down with debt. He asks them to think carefully before they inflict any heavier penalties upon it. Referring to the belief that a huge bond issue for public works would bring back prosperity, he says, "We can not thus squander ourselves into prosperity."

In another place, he says, "The back of the depression cannot be broken by any single government undertaking. That can only be done with the cooperation of business, banking, industry and agriculture in conjunction with the government." Concluding, he has this observation to make to advocates of an extended program of public works, "What you want and what I want is to restore normal employment." To that end he has drawn up a 12-point program.

Its details are not so important as the policy by which their form has been determined. It is a responsibility of every thinking American to decide for himself what the federal government's responsibilities in the present situation are. The issue between local responsibility, extending up to the state governments, and federal responsibility has been struck.

The federal government, because its credit is good, possesses almost unlimited ability to gather money from its people. There would be no difficulty, it may be said, in selling a billion-dollar bond issue. The money could be raised easily. Perhaps it is such effortless financing that has led Americans to believe their government pulls money out of the air, like a magician.

Money borrowed must be paid back, however. Then the beneficiary becomes the benefactor, thinly disguised as the disgruntled American taxpayer, who always is complaining that his taxes are too high. Mr. Hoover asks citizens to remember the roles they play in their government as spenders and receivers. It is up to them to decide what they want to do, but they must remember whatever they do that entails expenditure will have to be paid for out of their own pockets. The President performs his duty as guardian of the interests of the people by pointing out to them the danger of believing that their government, strong as it is, can buy back prosperity by spending the people's money for public works, many of which would be non-productive.

In preference to dependency on a federal bond issue, Mr. Hoover recommends a detailed program to aid in the restoration of normal times. It is not spectacular, it is not expensive, it gives nothing away and makes no rash promises. It asks that the budget be balanced and issue of further treasury certificates be avoided; these steps would restore confidence.

As steps in the program of actual relief and reconstruction, the President suggests continuation and enlargement of the Reconstruction Finance Corp.; expansion of credit, starting with federal reserve banks and ending with individual bankers; betterment of agriculture; continuation of public works such as can be financed without borrowing; passage of legislation to protect home owners from foreclosure and to finance home improvements; continuation of all efforts in relief of distress; and the five-day week, to spread employment. It is a program whose strength can not be disregarded, not even by those who will attack Mr. Hoover bitterly for opposing their scheme to lift the depression clouds by spending more money.

ANOTHER NOMINEE FROM MARION.

Ohio is certain to have one of her sons at the head of a national ticket, whatever may happen at the two big conventions.

He is Norman Thomas, nominated Sunday for president by the Socialist party. He'll be labeled on the ticket as from New York. But he is Buckeye born, a native of Marion, where he spent his boyhood in a parsonage and carried a route for Mr. Harding's Star.

Unlike his rivals on the two major party tickets, he will not have to worry about being elected. He need not promise a job to anyone, for there won't be any jobs. He suffers from no inhibitions lest indiscreet campaign utterances be cast up against him as an office holder.

He is in the happy position of being able to shout a "plague on both your houses," and swing his guns blithely from Republican to Democratic objectives. Mr. Thomas does this very well, as many who heard him in 1928 will recall. He was presidential candidate then, too, and his sprightly addresses by air were an entertaining interlude between the radio appeals of Alfred E. Smith and President Hoover's warnings to keep prosperity by retaining Republicans in office.

By all odds the radio oratorical honors of the 1928 campaign went to Candidate Thomas, but very few of the votes. He polled 267,420, or only a little more than a quarter of the Socialist high mark of 919,799 cast for Eugene V. Debs in 1920.

Since the Socialists don't expect to get very many votes, anyway, they take these small votes philosophically. Theirs is a party of protest and has no immediate expectation of coming into office. Candidate Thomas is an able and forceful leader of such an effort.

The situation of the American Socialists is a bit difficult as they forge their platform. Many issues which once were theirs have been taken over by the enemy.

On the one hand the Communists damn them for being reactionary, while on the other the "capitalist" parties have calmly annexed ideas and principles for which Comrade Debs and others were denounced 30 and 40 years ago. Which may be taken as simply another indication that much of the program of the Left may eventually be brought into being through the agency of the Right.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Saturday, May 25.

It was hailed as a great aviation achievement, the time being one hour and 50 minutes.

This was political field day in Marion, with both Democrats and Republicans holding their county conventions at the courthouse. Grant E. Mouser was chairman of the Republican gathering and Judge William E. Scofield presided for the Democrats.

The Star reported that the new government craft "Tellico," machinery and dredge equipment installed by the Marion-Osgood Co., had been given a tryout and official test in the Tennessee river near Knoxville and had met every requirement of the government.

Paralysis Not Disease But a Symptom.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Most persons misunderstand the word paralysis and are alarmed by it. It is really a symptom and not a disease. It is one of the signs of a large number of different conditions.

Paralysis is a medical term describing a partial or complete loss of the working of some part of the body. Though usually applied to muscles, it may also indicate a loss of sensation, such as deafness or blindness, due to paralysis of the nerves of hearing or seeing.

The layman is familiar with the form of paralysis that is found in brain hemorrhage or "stroke." In this condition the paralysis is due to a hemorrhage, or plugging up of one or more of the blood vessels of the brain; or it may be due to a tumor, abscess, or other change in the brain.

When this disorder occurs on the right side of the brain, there is a paralysis of the left side of the body. If the hemorrhage is on the left side of the brain, the paralysis occurs on the right side of the body. This is due to the crossing of nerve fibers at the base of the brain.

When the paralysis includes half of the body, as one side of the face, arm and leg, it is called "hemiplegia." Paraplegia is a paralysis of the legs and lower trunk. "Monoplegia" is a paralysis involving only a single extremity, as an arm or leg.

Contrary to the common belief, not all cases of paralysis are hopeless. Since most cases are due to some disease or disturbance of the blood vessels of the brain, it is important that a careful examination of the heart and blood vessels be made. In this examination certain tests are made to determine the strength of the different muscles. This enables the physician to learn the location of the central disturbance, the extent of the paralysis and the treatment necessary for recovery.

In the treatment, it is important that all sources of focal infection, such as diseased tonsils, teeth or sinuses be removed. Attention should be given to the stomach and intestines and in some cases it is essential that an X-ray examination be made. Lack of elimination should be corrected by diet.

Paralysis can only be treated under the supervision of a physician. This treatment includes various methods of therapy, such as baths, the use of electricity, massage, rest when necessary, and in other cases special forms of exercise. The skin should be kept clean and active by daily baths. If the blood pressure is high, treatment must be given to reduce it.

When paralysis is neglected there is great danger, for the disease is progressive and increases in severity if proper precautions are not taken. In certain cases complete cure and recovery are made possible by the present knowledge of medical science.

American Tourists Scarce.

BY RALPH HEINZEN
United Press Correspondent

Paris, May 25—As short a time as three years ago an American tourist abroad was just another "invisible export" which Europe seemed to imagine it enjoyed by Divine right. Now that American tourists are about as extinct as the Dodo, Europe is beginning to lament that the "tourist exports" are too nearly invisible.

Nothing is too good for the few visible tourists who happen to get as far away from home as Europe. The ocean steamship lines have cut their seagoing fares 20 per cent. Pullman car rates have been cut down to the new sized pocketbooks.

There is even a movement to cut out the many "nuisance taxes." That is offered as visible proof that the tourist commerce is in a bad way and that Europe would give a lot to decoy the American tourists back for further treatment.

In the past, the French government nicked the tourist's bankroll by charging a "port tax" of $4 to any foreign traveler landing in a French port. Then, if the traveler intended to stay awhile, he was ordered by the police to call around at the nearest police headquarters and buy $5 worth of identity cards.

Those were but two of the many "nuisance taxes" to which tourists objected. Another was a particularly prized bit of local carving on behalf of all of the hundreds of watering resorts and tourist towns. This was called a "taxe de sejour" and ran from 2 to 12 cents a day, depending upon the style in which you lived.

It may be hard to believe, but Europe is willing to get along without these multitudinous minor carvings if the American tourists will only come back again. The "taxe de sejour" is a French invention, intended to repair the streets, plant flower beds and keep French towns looking spic and span at the cost of those who come there from abroad to swell their old world atmosphere or look at their 15th Century splendor.

They now figure it out that 2 cents a day multiplied by 100 "invisible export" tourists means only $2, and you can't pave streets on $2 a day. Since the loss would not be great and the gesture would be large, it is now being proposed that these taxes be waived and the townsfolk charged for their own street cleaning. This is quite a revolutionary idea in some watering places.

A Letter Prized by Wilson.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH

The only piece of manuscript by his paternal grandfather, James Wilson, who was a Whig editor at Steubenville, possessed by Woodrow Wilson, was a letter written to him by John Sloane, a prominent Ohio man of the early days, now almost wholly forgotten. It was a mere friendly letter, telling of the celebration of Independence day at Steubenville, but Wilson's enthusiastic Whig politics would not let him tell even of such a matter without adding that "we outnumbered the opposition (Democrats) fully one hundred."

Sloane was a native of York, Pa., born in 1779, but came to Ohio early in life and was elected to the second, third and fourth general assemblies, being speaker of the fourth. After serving as receiver of public monies at Canton and Wooster, he was elected to congress in 1817 and served several terms, his last election being in 1827. He served three years, from 1841 to 1843, as secretary of state of Ohio, the secretaries being then elected by the legislature.

By appointment from President Millard Fillmore, he was made treasurer of the United States, from 1850 to 1853. In the war of 1812 he was a colonel of militia. His public service included also seven years as clerk of the courts of Wayne county. Editor Wilson served a term in the Ohio legislature about the time Sloane was elected to congress. Sloane was originally by a Democrat, but later joined the Whig party. This change in party affiliation on his part must have taken place prior to the writing of the letter by Editor Wilson, for so radical a Whig as he was, could hardly have had any personal relations with a Democrat.

Among Diamond Mines.

BY TEMPLE MANNING

We are always enthralled to the history of any famous diamond such as the "Hope" or "Cullinan" diamond. But every diamond, even a small, comparatively insignificant stone has an engrossing history. Everyone who has ever visited the famous diamond mines in South Africa knows that the romance attached to the mining of every stone from the earth is a wonderful story, one that bears constant retelling. And scarcely a tourist in South Africa who has not a recollection of the mines at Pretoria as one of the highlights of a wonderful trip.

Shrewd and brilliant minds have made the world of diamonds their own. And these men have made the visit to Pretoria a fascinating adventure. For it adds to the world's interest in those scintillating pieces of carbon that mean so much to many people. One has only to view the enormous excavations to realize how deeply the miners have dug in their search for the precious stones. Intricate machinery has been assembled and always new devices are being added to aid man in his search. Literally rivers of diamonds have poured from the mines. And always new findings are being made. But the market is cleverly controlled so that the marts of the world should not be flooded with too much of the precious merchandise.

Although the mines at Kimberly are still producing, it is the great Pretoria mines that supply the jewelers with the finest of their stock. One of the greatest of the mines is the Premier mine, famous for its yield of blue-whites. Opened in 1896, over forty million carats of diamond have been recovered with a value of over one hundred and fifty million dollars. Visitors watch the blue clay being excavated, then broken up, then sun-dried. Then as the clay slowly disintegrates, intricate machinery separates the precious gems from mother earth

There are other mines in South Africa where such involved machinery and processes are not necessary. The alluvial mines have riches literally on instead of in the earth. The richest deposits are just below the surface and sometimes visitors have the unique sensation of having the precious gems, even if they are rough and dull-looking, right underfoot. Although diamonds at the alluvial mines are plentiful, they are not of the large variety. These are still found in the underground workings. The average is about one carat. Rarely is a four-carat stone found there.

So judiciously is the diamond market controlled, that it is rarely hurt by changes in world conditions. The output is always regulated and so it is an easy matter to be a little more stringent and so keep abreast of conditions.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE

New York, May 25—Manhattan's indifference to the past was distressingly illustrated by the removal of the famous gilt Diana, posing so daringly above the old Madison Square Garden, to a public park in Philadelphia. Not a voice was heard in protest.

Diana, shedding the naked mystic twinkle in the sun, was as much a symbol of metropolitan consciousness as Times Square. It developed that since the Garden moved uptown the graceful goddess had been in storage in a musty, forgotten warehouse along the water front.

To many real and transplanted New Yorkers, Diana represented a cycle in the city's culture. She saw Peacock alley flourish and wither, was glorified by the gifted story-teller, O. Henry, stood in tip-toed expectancy as a hundred heroes passed in parade, etc. etc.

Diana looked down that fateful summer night when the wild-eyed wastrel Harry K. Thaw with impassioned horror pistoled the world famous architect, Stanford White, into a crumpled heap, amid popping champagne corks and a list of the town's distinguished first nighters.

She knew New York when life was not the complex thing of today, in the days of "the carriage and a pair"—before Communists came with terrible eloquence to sneer at the flag. For 40 brilliant years she stood in the wind and the rain to review the millions of upturned heads.

At night, silhouetted in the soft hush, she inspired many newcomers to an intoxicating hope. For Diana is a lengendary huntress associated with the moon. Even derelicts, sprawling on park benches, looked upon her as the last link with slipping ideals.

She was especially appealing to hand-holding honeymooners who drifted by in the ecstasy of love. Diana's bow seemed always tightened to fling a dart of happiness to all. Forgotten Diana! A great little lady who might have been given a hand as big as that for a Tex Guinan gal.

Another splendorous edifice in early New York days was the Flatiron, suggesting the dull gray prow of an enormous liner plowing up Broadway. In that period it hived many out-of-town newspaper correspondents, including Herbert Corey, who wrote more engagingly about the city's charms and personalities than any of his successors, save perhaps Lucius Beebe.

They were discussing pleasant exits from the highly publicized vale of tears. I should also like to aid Melville Gillett in his unceasing warfare against menus listing cole-slaw instead of cold-slaw, which he stoutly maintains is correct. A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, May 25—That diminutive, sometimes waspish senator from Virginia Carter Glass—may not get the call to head the platform committee at the Democratic national convention in June, but it hardly can be doubted that a lot of the Glass philosophy and ideas will be easily discernible in the planks used in its making.

For there are perhaps few these days who will challenge the notion that the Virginia senator stands about in a class by himself as an authority in public life on banking legislation.

His part in trying to cure the economic ills of the country has been big. At the age of 74 he is engaged on one of the most tremendous tasks he has ever undertaken—correcting by legislation what he terms the weaknesses of the federal reserve act which he himself wrote back in 1913.

In a Republican-controlled senate Glass has taken the lead in helping to frame the country's emergency financial legislation.

The story of Senator Glass' rise to fame as a financial legislator is remarkable. His start can be attributed more or less to chance.

When he came to congress back in 1902 as a member of the house he knew little about banking and currency. Actually his interest lay in the field of history. He thought when the time came to assign him to committees that he would like a seat on foreign affairs.

John Sharp Williams of Mississippi was the Democratic leader of the house at the time. He paid little attention to Glass' preference and stuck him in a seat on the public lands committee.

However, a few weeks later a western man came to the house and wanted an assignment on public lands. Williams and the speaker decided to shift Glass to make room for him.

"I'm going to put you on the banking and currency committee," said Williams.

"I don't know anything about it," replied Glass, "but I'm willing to learn."

"Sure you can," said Williams. "It will be interesting and you'll have a better chance to make a name for yourself."

Just how true Williams' prophecy was is now history.

He knows banking and banking problems as do few men. From the day that Williams switched him from public lands to banking and currency, he has studied the subject with a stubbornness and thoroughness that have made him its master.

The 1932 Democratic platform will bear evidence of his handiwork.

A luncheon has been arranged as a social feature of the program to be given June 11, and at this time winners in the fine arts festival contest will be announced by Mrs. Harder. Five awards are to be distributed among 17 clubs entered in the contest. Ohio will be represented by the Mt. Sterling federation contribution.

Judges of the contest are Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole of Brockton, Mass., unopposed candidate for the office of president of the general federation, Mrs. Edward MacDowell of Peterborough Colony, N. H. and Mrs. L. A. Miller, poet laureate of Colorado.

Addresses, reports and recommendations will be offered by the chairmen and other workers in the major departments, American citizenship, American home, fine arts, education, international relations, legislation, press and publicity and public welfare.

The high point of interest will be the election of officers. Nine candidates for the five offices were announced and introduced at the convention in Phoenix, Ariz., a year ago. Dr. Josephine L. The audience will be placed in direct communication with Asia, Europe, South America, with ships at sea and finally with a transport airplane in flight on one of the programs. A huge electric map will mark with tiny points of light the course of the speeding messages. It is expected that answers to all outgoing messages will be received before the close of the program.

Mrs. Harder will go to Chicago where she will join a convention party for the trip on one of the special convention trains. Mrs. W. H. Annual High School Class Prom Is Colorful Affair

MORE than 300 junior and senior students of Harding High school, a few guests and members of the faculty attended the annual junior-senior prom given last night at The Star auditorium.

As always the girls in their formal dance frocks were the prom's most highly colorful decorative notes. The boys, most of them in white flannels, dark coats and sport oxfords, were the background for the gay brightness of the girls.

In keeping with the spring season, a garden setting was used, with Cal Crumm's orchestra furnishing excellent dance music from the stage. The orchestra was in front of a background representing an old fashioned house, and the front of the stage resembled a low garden wall of white latticework. White latticed archways led on to the dance floor, around which were ranged porch and garden furniture and shaded lamps. Orchids appeared on the shoulders of several of the girls. Chiefly the shoulder and wrist corsages were of roses or gardenias.

The dance frocks, in every shade and black and white, ranged from the sophisticated backless gowns held with bead straps or T-straps of the same material, to demure, ruffled organdies and point d'esprit.

Materials were almost evenly divided between soft, clinging crepes and the more bouffant cottons that are so popular this spring. A few satin gowns were worn. Embroidered batistes, eyelet embroidery cottons, organdy in every pastel shade imaginable, figured organdies and plain organdies over flowered slips, were popular.

Several girls chose white frocks of organdy, fitted to the hips and swirling into ruffled hems, with which they wore sashes and slippers of matching satin. One girl wore a short jacket of orange taffeta with slippers in the same shade. Another was in blue organdy with a jacket of the same material. All of the frocks either touched the floor or were ankle length. Several of the gowns affected moderate bustles and a few peplums were worn.

Several dinner parties preceded the prom, and one or two members of the classes kept open-house last night. Among the guests were Supt. and Mrs. George A. Bowman.

Committee chairmen for the prom were Maxine Alspach, Marilyn Meseke, Katharine Marsh, Jack Bray, Robert Mautz, Robert Rosenberg and Francis Rourke.

John Guthrie, president of the junior class, was general chairman.

Members of Class Pay Tribute to Mothers at Party

THE Builders class members of the First United Brethren church entertained their mothers last evening with a potluck supper at the community house. Guests were Mrs. S. E. Powell, Mrs. John Bensley and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Thurston of Marion and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Murphy and Mrs. G. E. Winneger of Bucyrus.

A program opened with a tribute to mothers by Mrs. J. E. Thurston. A Mother's day reading was given by Mrs. Joseph Porter. Mrs. W. D. Scranton gave a reading, "What Mother Earns." A playlet, "Winding the Maypole," was given by a group of children, Clayton Porter, Arlene Winneger, Harold Prettyman, Melvin Miller, Eugene, Eunice and Dorothy Winneger and Donna Almendinger.

Mrs. P. E. Carrier played a piano solo and later sang a duet with Mrs. Harold Prettyman, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Carl V. Roop. Mrs. Roop opened the meeting with devotions and B. K. Hill led a song service.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Sands, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bensley and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bumgartner served refreshments. The class will have a dinner meeting June 28.

CHURCH AUXILIARY IN FINAL MEETING

The Catherine Woods auxiliary of the First Presbyterian church combined the annual mite box opening with a "depression" party last night at the home of Miss Jessie Henderson of Iberia.

An interesting letter was read from Miss Woods, who is on her way to China to continue her missionary work. Mrs. Charles A. Thomas was enrolled as a member. Guests were Mrs. Frank Tschanen, Mrs. F. B. Shannon, Mrs. J. W. Atchinson and Miss Nell Loveland of New Haven.

A "hobo" lunch was served. The auxiliary will discontinue its meetings until the fall season.

About 50,000 rosebuds are required to produce an ounce of oil of roses.

"It's no remotely likely that he will cave me anything," Jenny warned her dis as e. "He has his nephew. You say yourself Mr. Aveney is taking over the high cor and—"

Georgie's eyes were full of amber gleams under the soft lights. While her cousin had been in the kitchen she had undressed and put on pajamas of coral satin. She sat hugging her knees, her bare feet pushed under the eiderdown, her silken pillows braced up behind her. All around her her room spilled its luxuries. Jenny's gaze travelled from one colorful heap of clothes to another, from dressing table to wardrobe.

"There wouldn't be room for my little camp bed here now," she said involuntarily.

"You're more comfortable in—in the other room, the new room, surely?" defended Georgie.

"Oh yes, I'm very comfortable. It has turned into a pretty room, hasn't it?—I made the curtains and put them up. I suppose you saw. At least I cut them into the proper lengths and Eddie sewed them on the machine. It amused him a lot. He's very domestic, isn't he?"

Georgie tossed her head back and the bright short locks that had screened her eyes fell away. It was as though she said—"Oh let's get it into words, all this that hasn't yet been spoken." She stared straight in front of her.

"Eddie and I have separated for a year, Jen. We're pretending that everything went according to our original plan and that he is off to Mexico for a year, leaving our marriage secret and me at Matchings. The only difference is that—that instead of our week's honeymoon here we are to have none at all."

"Oh Georgie! But—"

"He doesn't want one."

Jenny was silent.

"No, I'll be honest," Georgie growned, still staring ahead. "He doesn't want our honeymoon to be furtive and short. A part of me agrees with him, the part that's proud to be his wife, the part that puts him before my job."

"The best part of you."

The coral satin shoulders shrugged.

"Best or worst—I don't know. Anyway another part of me which may equally be best or worst says that it would be sheer blazing lunacy to throw up five thousand a year and go traipsing off to the outermost suburban darkness and live on bread and—"

"And kisses."

"You're sentimentaly, honey. You always were. So is Eddie. It's you he ought to have fallen in love with, not me." She leaned a little towards Jenny. "I swear I won't let myself be jealous of you, lambie, but you must see that it will be a heroic feat. You're so absolutely his type. His last words were that he would keep in touch with you, let you know where he is to be found throughout the year, in case, I suppose, I change my mind." Her laughter was very near tears.

"I rather hope that he will stay with Mrs. Bigger," said Jenny quietly. "She's definitely good for him, doesn't get on his nerves. As for me I don't fancy he wants to see me again. He only likes me because I believed I could cure him and make him the Eddie you knew and loved. If you don't need that Eddie back again he won't hurry about getting well."

Georgie pulled aimlessly at her eiderdown. There was nervousness in the movement.

"If I'd had the nest egg in the bank that most people think I have—instead of an overdraft and a drawerful of bills—I would have gone off with him this evening," she whispered. "I wouldn't have asked where he was taking me. A room at Mrs. Bigger's would have been better than a suite at the Ritz with him. But I'd no choice, honestly. I must get my affairs in order and I must save. If I work harder and don't play at all I can do it in the year. I will do it. Don't you believe that if I hadn't been such a fool with my money I would have thrown up the job and gone with Ed?"

"No," said Jenny gently. "I think that there would still have been something in you that would have tried to get both independence and marriage as well. You're generous, dearest, but you're greedy too."

"You wait," cried Georgie, hugging her as she slipped off the bed. "You wait until you are in love yourself and find that your man only wants you on his terms."

There was no sound from Jenny; she stood quite still, smiled even, but Georgie was suddenly confused.

"Jenny."

"Well?"

"Are you—in love? With—with anybody?"

"No."

Jenny, still standing indifferently by the gleaming bed, still smiling, said it again.

"No."

"You're very vehement about it."

"There's no other way of convincing you, Georgie."

"How do you mean—oh, I see. But I wasn't getting at you and Eddie," explained Georgie with the large simplicity that is sometimes better than oceans of tact. "I got the idea for one wild moment that you were interested in Garth Aveney."

"I think we had better both turn in. You're getting imaginative." Jenny's smile felt nailed to her face. Oh to be alone!

"Yes, I must sleep. I have a heavy date tomorrow. Sorry I was such a fool about Aveney. Only—" She stopped pummelling her pillows and turned inquisitive amber eyes upon Jenny and her smile. "Why did you ask me if you could give me and Eddie away to him? It was such an amazing suggestion, especially now he's boss, that I naturally wondered—"

Jenny smiled steadily down at the tray she carried.

"I didn't realize this evening that he had been told I was Mrs. Townsend. And I forgot I was supposed to be and I had myself announced as Miss Revell. And—"

"Oh, that's all?" Georgie slumped cosily back and yawned. "Oh well, that's nothing to worry about—heaps of married women use their maiden names. And Aveney would probably only think that you were so newly married that you were shy."

"Also I was under the impression," Jenny ploughed on, "that you had told him about yourself and Eddie. I thought you told him that first night when we met him with Ryder Vale."

"My dear kid, I don't confide my love affairs to perfect strangers!" Georgie's yawns were getting franker and franker. "It's unwise—and in this case it would have been suicidal. Imagine the situation when I discovered, as I should have by the end of the evening, that this perfect stranger was the Old Man's nephew—who I knew was to take over from the Old Man in the near future. No, no, little Georgie may be all kinds of a fool but she isn't that kind yet."

She snuggled down under the covers, stretching her long limbs, one hand under her cheek. Jenny rubbed her smile away—no need to keep it there achingly now that Georgie was so nearly asleep. The big question could be asked with a pretense of indifference in one's voice only. She turned the words over in her mind. Supposing she said quite simply, "Garth Aveney wanted you to marry him, didn't he? Or would that appear prying—?"

She had opened her mouth to ask it when Georgie's drowsy murmur took shape.

"Good thing you haven't fallen for Aveney—he's marrying Brigitta Deering, the actress, as soon as she's free. I forget who her last husband was but she has just divorced him. ... Turn the light out at the door, honey, as you go."

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, May 26

THE lunar and mutual aspects among the important planets having influence on the affairs of this day point to a breaking up of long stagnant conditions, making way for some definite changes in business and environment, with possible new contracts and affiliations. And while the mind will be alert and clever, yet there is danger of false moves, subtle enmities and peculiar situations.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of breaking up of old obstacles and stagnant conditions, followed by the prospect of change in the interests and associations.

A child born on this day should be mentally clever and alert, but may be subject to treachery and intrigue. It may reach stability by industry, application and trustworthiness.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Brixton Reveals That He Wired Owen About the Missing Girls

I HAD BEEN WATCHING Sam Brixton carefully, though furtively, as Lillian verbally flayed him for his diatribe against Dr. and Mrs. Barnes. That Dicky was also giving him carefully camouflaged espionage I was certain.

There was something about Brixton's criticisms of the heads of Whitney Hall that did not ring true, although I knew him to be the type of man who would flare into quick tempered and unjust accusations when confronted with any emergency. He would always demand a scapegoat for any misfortune to himself or his family.

Sam Brixton Apologizes

But though Helena's hysterical lamentations were plainly sincere, it seemed to my imagination—probably overheated, I told myself severely—that her husband was forcing himself to a display of temper rather than yielding to it, and the conviction came to me suddenly that the very real fear he was experiencing held some other element than danger to the girls, lively as that apprehension undoubtedly was.

Whatever was back of his uncouth manner, however, yielded immediately to Lillian's onslaught. He was almost ludicrously mild as he turned a protesting face to her.

"Why, Lil," he said, and I saw her wince at the familiar appellation which I knew she must often have heard in the miserable days of her life with Marion's father, whose associate this man had been. "I didn't mean any offense, I'm sure," he went on, turning an apologetic face toward Dr. and Mrs. Barnes. "But of course my wife and I are fearfully upset and excited and we're really not responsible just now. I don't want you to think that we blame you, for we don't. We know you've given the girls every care and safeguard—"

"We understand perfectly," Dr. Barnes returned courteously, and I wondered if I imagined an undercurrent of irony in the words. I was sure of one thing. Outwardly the head of Whitney Hall and his wife were according the same courteous, earnest welcome and kindliness to these parents as to the Underwoods, but it would not have been in human nature to refrain from contrasting the two families, and I was sure I knew where the sympathies of Dr. and Mrs. Barnes were concentrated.

"Oh, please, somebody, tell me everything that's happened!" Helena pleaded suddenly, her voice breaking, and with one consent we all gave way to the need of the stricken mother.

All but her husband. His voice was gentleness itself, but there was an inexorable note in it.

"Just a minute, darling. I must know something first. Has a telegram come for me from my brother, Charles Owen?"

I thanked my particular little joss that every person in the room was so used to sudden emergencies requiring poker faces that not so much as a breath indicating surprise greeted his question.

"No," Dr. Barnes answered, "nothing has come for you so far. I can inquire, however, at once. From where do you expect it?"

His hand was on the telephone receiver, and I threw him a mental tribute. No one would have guessed that but a few minutes before the dignified head of Whitney Hall had listened to our theories that there was a possibility of Charles Owen being the man behind the kidnaping.

Brixton Had Forgotten

"No, don't bother, Mr. Brixton," said hurriedly. "It will probably be along. He's in Philadelphia, my brother is, and I knew he'd want to know about this, for he's so fond of both his niece and her friend Mary. I wired his hotel telling him to wire us here, for of course we couldn't wait a minute in starting."

"Did you wire Ronald too?" I found myself asking.

"Of course," Helena said, then at something in her husband's face she cried out: "Oh, Sam, you didn't forget to wire Ronald? I told you to."

"I'm afraid I did, we were in such a hurry," he mumbled, and if his wife did not mentally comment upon his preference of his half brother to Carolyn's brother in the matter of notification, she was the only one in the room who failed. I was sure.

Mary Had Wired Ronald

"Where can we send one now?" Helena demanded feverishly. "Ronald will never forgive me."

"Will you forgive me for my presumption?" Mary asked softly, "when I tell you that I wired Ronald before we left the hotel?"

"You dear!" Helena cried. "Oh, you darling, clever girl! To think that I—"

Her voice broke off in confusion, but I guessed, as I knew Mary did, that she was scourging herself for the jealousy and dislike of Mary that she had been unable wholly to conceal when the three girls, Mary, Marion and Carolyn, were together.

"MAN ABOUT TOWN" SHOWING AT PALACE

What happens when a young woman whose father is a member of a legation at Washington, D. C., kills a man who has forced her sister to betray her country? See "Man About Town," which will show at the Palace tonight and Thursday. Karen Morley steps out and nearly steals the picture from the star, Warner Baxter. The young actress whose work brought praise even with the [illegible] Barrymore brothers in one picture is excellent. The story concerns a young man, a professional gambler in the capital, who meets a girl during the war, fell in love with her, but by a trick of fate never sees her again until she is affianced to his best friend.

Baxter is the gambler who goes into secret service work as an honest job and Conway Tearle, plumper than ever, is the friend. Miss Morley's sister's husband, whom she has thought dead since the war, returns and in return for silence demands that she steal a treaty. Miss Morley witnesses the transaction and kills the man. Tearle, who is bitter against Baxter for taking his fiancee, puts him to work to solve the murder. The solution of the story throws a different light on Tearle's character. A Johnny Burke comedy, a novelty and a short subject complete the bill. H. H.

FLASHES OF LIFE

By The Associated Press

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—A dust-stained wayfarer has been made welcome by the city, given a bath and a meal while his hosts speculate on how he got so far from home. He was only five miles in from the coast when a motorist came upon him, but folks at the zoo who know their sea lions say that's a lot of overland travel for a member of the family.

AKRON, O.—Sam Belch, a night watchman, has decided to put his money back in the bank. He drew out his savings of $1,900 thinking it safer to have his money by him. But he had to battle a couple of holdup men so hard he required hospital attention. After getting patched up Sam decided being his own safety deposit box was too strenuous.

CHICAGO—It's not because more persons are dying, Health Commissioner Herman N. Bundesen explains, but because fewer babies were born that the Chicago death rate exceeded the birth rate last week. There were 708 deaths and 640 births.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—The firemen of the city are developing quite a technique in bathroom rescues, thanks to mischievous youngsters. They had no sooner broken in to bring out Edward Haber, 2, who was angling for a celluloid fish in the bath tub, than they were called to get the Voronovsky children, Zoe, 2, and her baby sister, who had imprisoned themselves.
